re: SearchTX

CourTex—Office of Court Administration, October 2018

re:SearchTX became available to attorneys and registered users on November 7th, 2018. re:SearchTX is a statewide court records portal that works similarly to PACER, the federal online records system. re:SearchTX allows judges, attorneys and members of the public to retrieve documents that have been e-filed and to search for case information for all 254 counties in Texas. Prior to November 7th, re:SearchTX was only available to judges and clerks and attorneys of record to view their own e-filed cases. The Texas Supreme Court signed the final order regarding this portal on October 2, 2018. In its Order, the Court stated “[B]y making court documents more readily available to the public, e-access provides greater transparency for the justice system that is critical to evaluating its operation, improving its procedures and strengthening the public trust.”

re:SearchTX operates in one of two ways and varies from county to county. The first way is called the repository method and only documents that have been e-filed are available to search. Documents not e-filed will be unavailable through re:SearchTX. The second way is search and access which is not limited to only documents that have been e-filed. Regardless of the method each county uses, all documents in the portal will be watermarked to show they are merely a copy from re:SearchTX. Official certified copies must still be obtained through the clerks of the court of each county. There are fees associated with downloading documents from re:SearchTX. The fee is ten cents per page with the revenue going back to the county where the filings originated. Once purchased, the documents will only be available for viewing for 30 days so users will want to save the documents in an offline location if access is desired for more than 30 days.

The website for re:SearchTX is available here. The website includes a lot of useful information including how to access the portal and tips for searches.

About re:SearchTX

re:SearchTX is the only service that offers a single place to easily find case information and court documents from every court in the state.

Technology to Assist Law Firms

AALL Spectrum, July/August 2018

In a recent Spectrum journal published by the American Association of Law Libraries, there is a useful article detailing various types of apps and programs to assist with meetings, planning, and visual aids. The article references several free apps to help with brainstorming and organization of ideas. Lucidchart is an online diagramming app that allows the users to create flowcharts, organizational charts, process maps and network diagrams, all with the use of free templates. Coggle and MindMeister are both free account based software programs. Both programs create detailed “mind maps” that can be shared and edited by a group of people. These types of programs are a good way to store a record of shared ideas and refer back to them for further discussion. PBworks is a free online website that permits users to set up a free internal wiki space, useful for collaborative efforts on anything from a pleading to trial exhibits. Storyboard That is a fun and practical way to tell a story or show a sequence of events. This is a free website that allows the user to tell a story with the use of dozens of backgrounds, characters, wardrobes and shapes.

Here is a basic example of a creation from Storyboard That:

The same article also lists several blogs and websites as a way to remain current on technology news and the newest apps. Consider checking out TechCrunch, Mashable, and Gizmodo and the Tech sections of several news sites including HuffPost and Business Insider.

The Texas Supreme Court adopted the Task Force on the Texas Bar Examination's recommendation to switch from the Texas Bar Exam to the Uniform Bar Examination. This recommendation came after the task force conducted a 2 year study of the bar exam following declining bar exam scores in Texas and throughout the nation. This change would allow new attorneys who pass the exam a score that can be applied for bar admission in more than 30 states. The Supreme Court's order said that the change will not take place until the February 2021 exam and that all rules and amendments regarding the change will be adopted by that time. The Uniform Bar Exam will do away with testing examinees on Texas procedure and evidence as well as the Texas essay portion. Instead, the Uniform Bar Exam will only include the multistate bar examination, the multistate performance test, and essay questions. Another aspect of the recommendation that the Court adopted is the development of a Texas law course and examination to ensure that Texas bar applicants learn Texas law, ethics, and procedure. The Supreme Court is accepting public comments on this order until December 8, 2018. Written comments may be sent to rulescomments@txcourts.gov. A copy of the Court's order is available here.

Lexis Advance Tips

The Curt B. Henderson Law Library proudly offers Patron Access to Lexis Advance on all of the public computers. One of the wonderful benefits of this subscription is online access to the Matthew Bender guides which includes the following: Texas Transaction Guide, Texas Litigation Guide, and Texas Family Law Practice & Procedure. Here is how to locate these guides:

Upon signing in, the homepage and search bar will be brought up on the screen:

The screenshot shows the Lexis Advance homepage. At the top, there is a navigation bar with links for 'Signed in as Patron Access - Collin County Law Library', 'What's new?', and 'Sign in to Lexis Advance'. On the right side of the top bar are links for 'Client Name', 'History', 'Help', and 'More'. Below the top bar is a search bar with the placeholder 'Enter a source name, a citation, terms or sheet: [citation] to Shepardize®'. To the right of the search bar are buttons for 'Advanced Search', 'Type', 'Get a Doc Assistance', and a magnifying glass icon. Below the search bar is a navigation menu titled 'Explore Content' with tabs for 'Content type' (selected), 'Federal', 'State', 'Practice Area or Industry', and 'International'. Under 'Content type', there are links for 'Cases' (with a count of 1), 'Statutes & Legislation' (with a count of 1), 'Administrative Codes & Regs' (with a count of 1), 'International & American Information' (with a count of 1), 'Secondary Materials' (with a count of 1), 'Forms' (with a count of 1), 'Juries, Pleasements & Motions' (with a count of 1), 'International & American Information' (with a count of 1), 'News' (with a count of 1), 'Legal News' (with a count of 1), 'Dockets' (with a count of 1), 'Paralegal' (with a count of 1), 'Directories' (with a count of 1), 'Intellectual Property' (with a count of 1), 'Practical Guidance' (with a count of 1), and 'Public Records' (with a count of 1).

Simply type the name of the desired guide into the search box. The user can either type the entire title into the search box or select the name of the guide from the Lexis Advance predictive results:

The screenshot shows the search results for 'Texas Trans'. The search term 'Texas Trans' is typed into the search bar at the top. Below the search bar, there are two sections: 'Sources' and 'Documents'. The 'Sources' section contains a list of items, with the first item, 'TX - Texas Statutes & Codes Annotated by LexisNexis®', circled in red. The 'Documents' section contains a list of legal documents, with the first item, 'Texas & Pacific Motor Transp. Co. v. Railroad Comm.', circled in red.

The requested sections will be available online and the user has the option to print or email the pages or forms requested, subject to copyright law.
