Why the Honoree is receiving a GEM Award including dates:

In early August, Jarrad was requested to assist in the training of a new employee who was scheduled to start on September 6. Jarrad spent a great deal of time ensuring all of his grant reporting deadlines were met and ahead of schedule so that he could dedicate his time entirely to the training of the new employee. During the training, Jarrad realized there were many areas of the grant accounting and reporting that needed improving. He analyzed each grant and built efficiencies into the daily business process, as well as, changes to previous reporting. He was able to accomplish all of this while still completing his daily work assignments. Jarrad is an asset to this department and to the county. He is dedicated and committed to achieving excellence in his job duties and is always willing to assist when necessary.
