Years of Service with the County: 2

Why the Honoree is receiving a GEM Award including dates:

Officer Brockman started his career with the Sheriff's Office in Housing and eventually moved down to the Admissions/Release department after showing much interest. Officer Brockman has since then also joined the Collin County Detention Response Team. Officer Brockman exceeds the expectations for employee of the month. Officer Brockman always shows up to work and is willing to put forth 100 percent, even when obstacles arise. Officer Brockman knows when it's time to be serious at work, but also puts a smile on everyone's face by his sense of humor. Officer Brockman is always acting as an informal leader and leading his platoon in the right direction. I've asked Officer Brockman if he's ready to be an FTO and the answer he always gives me is, "I'm still trying to learn more." This shows that Officer Brockman wants to better himself and continue to grow as an officer. Eventually, I see Officer Brockman stepping up to the role of a supervisor based on what I have seen from him in his time working here.

When it comes to Officer Brockman's work ethic, without a doubt he exceeds all expectations set by his supervisors. Not only does he complete his assigned tasks quickly, but is always helping others where help is needed. If Officer Brockman sees work to be done, he gets it done without having to be told to do so. Due to the amount of work Officer Brockman gets accomplished, some days it's hard to tell which position he is assigned to. There have been days where I've had to ask Officer Brockman, "Hey, where are you assigned today?" There have been days where I've had to tell Officer Brockman, "Hey, go take a break, you've done a lot tonight." Now does Officer Brockman take that much deserved break? Absolutely not, he just keeps pushing through to the end of the shift. If there was ever a day where I was left with one officer to run booking, Officer Brockman would be the one. With all of this being said, Officer Brockman truly deserves to be named employee of the month.
